

CHAPTER 12

PROTECTION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

BASIC FEATURES OF HUMAN RIGHTS

FUNDAMENTAL ASPECTS

Human rights are the basic rights that every person has, simply because they are human. These rights are universal, which means they are the same for everyone, no matter where they live, what they believe, or how they choose to live their lives. They include the right to life, freedom, and the pursuit of happiness.

PROTECTION AND FREEDOM

These rights are designed to protect individuals and provide freedom to choose how to live, think, and speak without fear and with dignity. They cannot be taken away, although they can sometimes be restricted, for example, if someone breaks the law.

RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF PAKISTANI CITIZENS

RIGHTS IN PAKISTAN

In Pakistan, citizens have rights enshrined in the constitution, including the right to education, equality before the law, and freedom of speech and religion. These rights are critical to ensuring that individuals can participate fully in the life of their country.

CITIZEN DUTIES

Duties of Pakistani citizens include obeying laws, paying taxes, voting in elections, and respecting the rights of others. By fulfilling these duties, citizens uphold the constitution and contribute to the stability and development of Pakistan.

STATE OF HUMAN RIGHTS IN PAKISTAN

CURRENT HUMAN RIGHTS ASSESSMENT

The state of human rights in Pakistan is complex, with challenges in areas such as women's rights, freedom of expression, and access to justice. While the country has made progress in some areas, there is still work to be done to ensure that all citizens can enjoy the full range of human rights.

IMPROVEMENT MEASURES

To safeguard human rights in Pakistan, it is crucial to strengthen institutions like the courts and police, educate people about their rights, and ensure that laws protecting human rights are properly enforced. It is also important for the media, civil society, and international community to continue to advocate for human rights.

UN HUMAN RIGHTS DECLARATION, 1948

HISTORICAL DOCUMENT

The United Nations Human Rights Declaration, adopted in 1948, is a milestone document that set out the fundamental human rights that should be protected worldwide. It was the first global expression of rights to which all human beings are inherently entitled.

DECLARATION PRINCIPLES

The declaration includes rights such as the right to life, liberty, and security, the right to work and education, and freedom from discrimination. These rights are intended to apply universally, ensuring that all people, regardless of where they are from, are treated with dignity and respect.
