QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.1: What was Jameel's father doing when he arrived home?

Ans: Upon Jameel's arrival home, his father was sipping tea.

Q.2: In what location did the family gather for dinner?

Ans: The family convened in the center of the yard for their evening meal, where Jameel and his father had been conversing.

Q.3: Where did Jameel and Sara choose to study?

Ans: Jameel and Sara opted to study at their aunt's residence in the city.

Q.4: Where was the hospital constructed?

Ans: The hospital was erected amidst the verdant fields of their village.

Q.5: How many children did Sara have?

Ans: Sara had a total of two children.

Q.6: What mode of transportation did they utilize for their journey?

Ans: They traveled by means of horse-drawn carts.

Q.7: Why do you suppose nobody engaged in conversation during dinner?

Ans: The lack of conversation during dinner stemmed partly from the Islamic belief of not speaking excessively while eating. Additionally, everyone sensed Jameel's slight distress, which further contributed to the silence.

Q.8: What caused Jameel to feel upset?

Ans: Jameel experienced distress as he aspired to become a doctor but lacked access to a college within his village or nearby areas, leaving him concerned about his educational prospects.

Q.9: Why do you think Sara concealed her emotions?

Ans: Sara recognized that her father could not afford the educational expenses for both her and Jameel. Although her longing brought her to tears, she refrained from revealing her emotions to spare her father further grief.

Q.10: Why did Sara and Jameel need to pass all their exams on the first attempt?

Ans: Sara and Jameel had to pass all their exams on the first try due to the financial difficulties their parents faced in financing their education. Additionally, they supplemented their income by tutoring other children. Failing an exam would have meant repeating the academic year, which would have necessitated paying the entire year's expenses, an unfeasible prospect for them.

Q.11: How did Sara, Jameel, and their family manage the expenses for their studies?

Ans: Sarah, Jameel, and their family faced numerous challenges to afford their education. Alongside their studies, Sara and Jameel provided tutoring services to cover some of the expenses. Furthermore, in the fourth year of medical college, their family sold a significant portion of their fertile land to pay the fees.

Q.12: How did life transform for Jameel's family and the villagers?

Ans: Jameel and Sara fulfilled their dreams of becoming doctors and established a hospital in their village. The local community now had access to affordable medical treatment and no longer needed to travel to the city for healthcare. Jameel and Sara's achievement as doctors elevated their family's prosperity and honor while also fulfilling their desire to serve the village residents.

Q.13: In what way was Sara educating the village women?

Ans: Sara educated the village women by organizing successful seminars where she provided guidance on improving personal and family health and hygiene.

Q.14: What moral lessons can be derived from the story?

Ans: This story teaches us the importance of never abandoning our dreams and persevering through difficult circumstances. It emphasizes the need to face every challenge with courage and determination, as hardships are temporary and success follows perseverance.
